Dave Baughman "The Outdoor Insider"

We got a good amount of rain in Leavenworth over the weekend. I am sure this is a good thing for the fires that are still burning in the region and hope it doesn't result in flooding in certain areas. I was on the road a few days last week, and I am planning some day trips to check on a couple of fishing opportunities that come along in the fall.

I traveled to Hayden, Idaho last week to attend a special event on behalf of Mark's Marine with the Thunder Jet, and to explore a couple of the lakes in the area. Although the fishing for big kokanee on Lake Coeur d'Alene is still going great guns, I wanted to fish Hayden Lake for the first time. My fishing buddy, Tony Johnson, told me about the terrific fishing for kokanee on Coeur d'Alene, but agreed to take me to Hayden in his Thunder Jet Luxor. He said that the size of the kokanee on the lake were almost as big as the ones on Coeur d'Alene, but the good fishing for them may be over. He was sure right. It was not only over, the kokanee seemed to have all but disappeared. We saw a couple of good marks when we left the Honeysuckle Park launch, and then they became scarce. Not only that, but the wind also came up. We battled the wind and searched a couple of different areas of the lake and simply couldn't find any fish. Even when the wind settled down the screen remained blank. Kokanee aren't the only species found in Hayden, there is a long list of other fish attractive to anglers, but we only had our kokanee gear along. Well, lesson learned—hit Hayden in the spring and early summer for kokanee.

My new fishing buddy, Tony Johnson, wants to troll for the big rainbow on Lake Pend Oreille, on his Thunder Jet. Pend Oreille is kind of intimidating. It's 43 miles long and over 1,000 feet deep. I see people using everything from kokanee gear to big plugs or flies. Right now, the big rainbow, and I mean fish over 20 pounds, are down deep. As the water cools they move up in the water column and in the early winter people flat line their lures. I took my box of lures that I use for the big cutthroat on Omak Lake.

We launched Tony Johnson's Thunder Jet Luxor near the bottom end of Lake Pend Oreille in Farragut Boat Launch last Friday and was pleased to see Joe Cimino had joined us for the day. We headed across the lake, above the slides where mountain goats are often seen, to the Concrete Plant. There is no limit on the number of rods you can have out on Pend Oreille and we had them stacked on the riggers and run out the back on cannon ball weights. We had a variety of plugs on our lines and changed them often. We were watching the Lowrance and seeing lots of marks that were schools of kokanee up high and much larger marks down to 80 feet. Our hopes were to hook one of the monster rainbow that inhabit Pend Oreille. Fishing for these trophies is best in October and November, but it never hurts to learn your way around this huge patch of water. They pointed out different landmarks and trolled up to Whiskey Rock to within sight of Maiden Rock before turning back to the launch. It was a beautiful day to be on the water, and we vowed to come back when the big rainbow are biting. This week's photo is of Tony's Thunder Jet at the Farragut boat launch.

Thousands of people have memories of attending the Wenatchee River Salmon Festival over the many years it was presented at the National Fish Hatchery in Leavenworth. Thanks to the Chelan County PUD it continues to provide an excellent day of entertainment and education. This year it will be held on September 19th at Rocky Reach Park and Discovery Center, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be lots of hands on activities for the kids and educational displays and exhibits that the whole family will enjoy. This year's theme is "We Are River People", and the event celebrates the many ways the Columbia River connects people, wildlife and communities. The kids will be able to take home a fish print, which they paint on site using a Japanese technique call gyotaku. The portable aquarium will also return this year, where visitors can spot and name local fish. Families can also visit a Native American village and learn about the traditions, stories and cultures of indigenous people from across the region. The experience will feature 45 Native American educators and exhibitors representing 11 tribes and bands.

I want to thank all of you that have subscribed to the FishingMagician.com Facebook page. It may not seem like much, but it really helps keep me on the road and afloat to do the reports that I do. You will soon be seeing information about fishing opportunities in north Idaho, in addition to the areas that I have been covering for years. All of this costs. The time and travel, fuel and licenses, etc. I also wanted to let you know that I have recently produced a series of videos that include reviews of some of my favorite products. These will be available to subscribers to the FishingMagician.com Facebook page. Things that I personally use when I am fishing for the different species available to us in this region. There are some tips and tricks that I share with subscribers as well. If you like what I do and want to learn more about what I use to catch fish and the products that I personally prefer, just click on the Subscriber button on my page. Thanks in advance!

COOPER CHUN CLAIMS WIN IN BORDER BATTLE USA VS. CANADA RACE KICKS OFF RACE THAT DREW 340 RACERS

AIRWAY HEIGHTS — Cooper Chun chased redemption all the way from Arizona and finally ran it down.

The 22-year-old Vancouver, Wash. college student used a .020 reaction time and turned a 5.111-second ET at 134.711 miles per hour to top Brayden Heroux from Saskatoon, Sask. in the finals of the Border Battle staged Sept. 9 at Qlispe Raceway near Spokane.

The win in the initial event of the first annual Northwest Classic paid Chun $15,000 in a breakout finish as Heroux ran a 6.029 second time on a 6.04 dial-in at 114.05 mph.

Chun and his Mullis dragster were part of a similar challenge race earlier in the season at Tucson, Ariz. "The team I was on won that one, but I didn't do the best in it so I kind of wanted some redemption," he said.

He earned his final round berth defeating fellow Team-USA racer Trevor Harkema from Coeur d'Alene in a double breakout eighth-mile race. Chun ran a 5.119 on a 5.12 dial (.001) but Harkema's 5.24 on a 5.03 (.21) and was the difference.

Chun's first two rounds provided wins over Jeremy Soars (5.134 to 4.821) and Isaac Sterner (5.136 to 4.758). Chun's .008 to .066 reaction time was the difference in the round of eight.

"Main thing nowadays is you have to be really good on the tree," Chun explained and round two was proof.

Looking to wrap up a degree in business and accounting from WSU Global next spring, Chun has more drag racing ahead, Sept. 21-27 in St. Louis.

There, he'll compete in the Million Dollar Drag Race for sportsman cars that could reward $1 million.

Chun will drive a car owned by a friend. "Luckily I don't got to make the 30-hour tow because I did last year."

He'd love to replicate the success he had in Las Vegas last year where "I walked with about 150 grand last year from that race." The money was split between college, savings and of course racing.

Chun said he's been around racing as long as he can recall.

"My grandpa raced, my dad raced and I kind of got into it that way," Chun said. "I kind of was born into it and I wouldn't want to do anything else."

JESSICA JUEL FILLS IN, WINS BIG AT NW CLASSIC

AIRWAY HEIGHTS — Spokane's Jessica Juel answered the public address announcers request that she report to the tower during last week's Northwest Classic bracket drag race at Qlispe Raceway on Sept. 11.

Juel's certainly glad she heard the call and is now $20,000 richer because of it.

Mind you Juel was not the recipient of such a cash prize from the Northern Quest Casino near the track. She had to work all of about 30 seconds to claim the winnings driving six rounds on the drag strip's eighth-mile to win the "Top Bulb 64" race.

Talking on Sept. 14 with a scratchy voice reminiscent of someone with a cold, "There's been some celebration to be had here in the last few days," Juel said.

The race was initially and previously filled with 64 entrants with $20K to win and $4,000 to the runner-up. But not everyone showed and Juel's reaction was "I said yes, of course."

"They asked if I wanted to get into the show as an alternate," Juel explained. She rolled the dice and would pony up $550 entry money and it paid off as she reached the final against Canadian Dwane Ringguth.

Juel laid down a winning final of 4.57 seconds at 147.88 mph, sporting a .017 reaction time. Ringguth clocked a 4.600 at 151.47 after a .019 starting line reaction.

From a money standpoint the win is by far the biggest in a long career that started with Juel riding a Hot Wheel trike as a kid. At age 16 she hopped into her dad Don's rear-engine dragster and "I never got out."

Juel does, however, cite a win at a National Hot Rod Association race earlier this year in Mission, British Columbia as her biggest and most memorable.
