HISTORIC PHOTOS of IDAHO PANHANDLE

Coeur d'Alene City Park
 In 1902, Frederick Blackwell, a wealthy lumberman from Williamsport, Penn., came to Coeur d'Alene to invest in the emerging timber industry. In addition to developing one of the largest timber empires in northern Idaho, he became involved in railroad building, banking, tourism and recreation. In 1905, he constructed one of the most attractive parks in the Inland Northwest near downtown Coeur d'Alene. The new park, which was first named Blackwell Park and later became the Coeur d'Alene City Park, extended over 20 landscaped acres along the waterfront. In addition, a dance pavilion, bath house and grandstand were constructed on the park grounds, along with graveled walkways, flowers and a variety of shade trees.

"The Outdoor Insider"

It was great to see so many people out and about when several lakes in the region opened to fishing on Sunday. The parking areas were packed with vehicles and the shores were lined with folks eager to make their first casts of the season in hopes of getting a bite from a hungry rainbow.

I made my usual sweep through the Columbia Basin to check on the turnout for the March 1st opening of several lakes. Clear skies and calm water greeted anglers, and I think there were more anglers trying their luck on the lakes that I visited than in past openers. The parking lots were packed and the banks lined with folks eager to land their first trout of the season. Burke and Quincy lakes had the large crowds, and I was surprised to see more boats out on Quincy than Burke. That makes sense actually, as Quincy Lake has limited bank access and was planted with the same number of fish prior to the opener as Burke. Another surprise was that fishing at both of these lakes was very slow, and few of the 1 pound trout that were planted were being caught. Success was much higher at Martha Lake, where I saw the first limit of the day. These trout were mostly 11 inches long. I don't think that I have ever seen as many people at Martha than Sunday. The same was true at Caliche Lake. People were catching fish here and both parking areas were packed. By the way, the water is very high at Caliche, so the usual path to the west shore was flooded. This week's photo was taken at Martha Lake, which is near the town of George.

A lot of anglers dusted off their tackle boxes to take advantage of the opening of many lakes for trout fishing. In addition to the lakes that I have mentioned that opened to trout fishing on March 1st, there are many other lakes in Eastern Washington that shared that opening date. In Columbia County, the five Tucannon River off-channel lakes — Blue, Deer, Rainbow, Spring, and Watson — open March 1. These lakes are stocked with rainbow trout weighing up to 1.5 pounds. In Spokane County, Liberty Lake opened March 1 and received 4,000 catchable-size rainbow trout and 350 jumbo rainbow trout in 2026. Trout at Liberty Lake can range from 12 to 16 inches. Amber and Medical lakes also open March 1; both lakes are managed under selective gear rules and are expected to fish well this spring. In Lincoln County, Coffeepot Lake also opened on March 1 and is scheduled to receive 5,000 put-grow-take rainbow trout in spring 2026. In Whitman County, Pampa Pond opened March 1 for rainbow trout fishing.

I have spent many winter mornings on the Colville Indian Reservation fishing from the shore at the net pen site. It had been a while since my friends and I have had a chance to give this a try, and the opportunity came up a few days ago. As we pulled into the site, I only saw two boat trailers, and we had the beach at the boat launch to ourselves. We found the river current running fast, and the water was so high that we were restricted to a small area near the boat ramp. James Lebow and I cast out our favorite chartreuse color of Power Bait. Our other fishing buddy, Ryan Harris, did the same, but added a Power Bait Mouse Tail to his hook. James and I had laughed at Ryan when he first used one of these on a trip to the net pens a couple years ago but then had to borrow some when he had success with them. We spent just a couple of hours fishing, as the day became colder and threatened to snow on us. Guess what, the only bite the three of us got was on Ryan's rod, with the Mouse Tail.

While many of us anglers waited for the March 1st opening of many lakes throughout the region, I was out checking on a couple of places people fish in the winter. One of the spots that I always find anglers fishing from the shore is at Crescent Bay on Lake Roosevelt, just below the town of Grand Coulee Dam. Earlier this year the water level was very high, and it has been dropping only recently. When I stopped by the other day I saw just one angler on the beach. The water level had dropped significantly, and I understand the plan is for it to drop even more this late winter and early spring for maintenance on Grand Coulee Dam. Fishing has not been particularly great this winter, and maybe the drop in the water level will change things. I also stopped by Billy Clapp Lake to check on the water level there. It is still low and I could tell that there has been some shore fishing activity, but from what I hear, fishing success has been slow this winter. I have had terrific days in the spring on Billy Clapp, but not so much the past two seasons.

Although there are many lakes that are open year round in the region, the March 1st opening of many lakes is often the first fishing trip of the season. To make the most of these first outings there are some things I hope you remember before you leave home. Be sure you have your fishing license. It is surprising how many people forget to put their license in their jacket pocket, tackle box or wallet. Not having your license can really spoil your day. Make sure your reel is in working order. You may want to add fresh line. Monofilament does deteriorate over time. Check that you have what you need, like extra hooks, sinkers, dough bait or eggs and marshmallows. If you are fishing from shore, it's a good idea to have rod holders. If you are fishing from a boat, make sure the motor starts. I am amazed at how many times I have seen folks launch their boat only to find their battery is dead or the fuel has gone bad. Also, remember that youngsters under the age of twelve must wear lifejackets on boats under nineteen feet in length. Take a cooler and ice to keep your catch fresh.

COEUR D'ALENE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA PRESENTS CELEBRATING YOUNG ARTISTS CONCERT

Six National Competition Winners Perform with the Symphony on March 14

The Coeur d'Alene Symphony Orchestra (CSO) will present its annual Celebrating Young Artists Concert at 3:00 p.m. Saturday, March 14, 2026, at the Schuler Performing Arts Center on the North Idaho College campus. A free pre-concert lecture, Dialogues with Danh, will be held at 2:00 p.m., offering audience members insight into the program and performance.

One of the most anticipated events of the Symphony's season, the concert showcases six winners of the CSO's National Young Artist Competition performing celebrated masterworks alongside the full orchestra under the direction of Music Director Danh Pham. The program highlights exceptional young musicians from across the country, each demonstrating remarkable artistry while performing some of classical music's most beloved repertoire.

2026 Young Artist Competition Winners

Gabrielle Sewell, violin — A soloist and educator praised for her "innate musicianship" and "formidable technique," Sewell is a winner of the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music Concerto Competition and has appeared as a soloist with multiple orchestras, including a performance alongside Andrea Bocelli. She will perform Henryk Wieniawski's Violin Concerto No. 2 in D minor, Op. 22.

Lily Richards, violin — A 17-year-old from Chehalis, Washington, Richards won First Prize in the 2025 Olympia Young Artists Competition and earned a Bronze Medal in the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra Young Artists Competition. She has performed as a soloist with Philharmonia Northwest and the Tacoma Junior Youth Symphony. She will perform Erich Wolfgang Korngold's Violin Concerto in D major, Op. 35.

Elizabeth Li, piano — A junior at Vanderbilt University's Blair School of Music, Li has earned top honors in national and international competitions, including a Gold Medal at the National Young Maestro Competition, with performances at Carnegie Hall's Weill Recital Hall, and Grand Prize at the New York Concert Festival Competition at Lincoln Center. She will perform Maurice Ravel's Piano Concerto in G.

Bridget Hoang, piano — An eleventh-grade student from Morgan Hill, California, Hoang has received numerous competition honors and has appeared as a soloist with the Golden State Youth Orchestra and the Palo Alto Philharmonic. She will perform Sergei Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 1 in F# minor, Op. 1.

Kiko Li, bassoon — A DMA candidate at the University of Minnesota, Li holds advanced degrees from Indiana University's Jacobs School of Music and has served as guest principal with several orchestras. An influential figure in the online music community, she has garnered more than 100 million views worldwide with her videos. She will perform Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's Bassoon Concerto in B b major, K. 191.

Joanna Kim, soprano — A Korean-American soprano praised for her "crystal-clear" voice and compelling stage presence, Kim earned First Place in the NATS Gwendolyn Roberts Young Artist Auditions and holds degrees from the University of Southern California and the New England Conservatory. She will perform "Glitter and Be Gay" from Leonard Bernstein's Candide, the role of Cunegonde.

Tickets are $35 for adults, $25 for seniors, and $15 for military/veterans and students. Children ages 6-12 attend free with the purchase of an adult or senior ticket. North Idaho College students and children ages 0-5 are admitted free of charge.

Tickets are available at cdsymphony.org or by calling 208-765-3833.

REDDICK CLAIMS RECORD THIRD STRAIGHT VICTORY AT COTA
By Reid Spencer; NASCAR Wire Service

AUSTIN, Texas (March 1, 2026) — Ever since the Chicago Bulls reign of the 1990s, the "three-peat" has been the sole province of NBA superstar Michael Jordan.

Now "His Airness" has to share the distinction with one of his drivers.

Tyler Reddick made history on Sunday at Circuit of the Americas, powering the No. 45 Toyota co-owned by Jordan and Denny Hamlin to victory in the DuraMAX Texas Grand Prix Powered by Reladyne.

A week earlier at EchoPark Speedway near Atlanta, Reddick became the sixth driver to win the first two races of a NASCAR Cup Series season. At COTA on Sunday, he became the only driver in NASCAR history to win the first three.

There was nothing easy about Reddick's 11th career victory and his second at the 2.4-mile road course. In order to claim the trophy, he had to hold off New Zealander Shane van Gisbergen, who was seeking his sixth straight road course victory.

"It means the world," said Reddick, who led a race-high 58 of 95 laps. "Yeah, it's so fitting. We get going at the end there, and I'm leading and there's SVG, the guy I've been trying to beat for a while now. Just to be able to outlast him there and hold on for the win is just incredible.

After the three victories, Reddick holds a commanding 70-point lead over 23XI teammate Bubba Wallace, who finished 11th on Sunday. Chase Elliott is third in the standings, 72 points back.

Jordan was elated with the NASCAR "three-peat."

"He had a chance to win three in a row, and that's the hardest one to win," said Jordan, who led the Bulls to three straight

NBA titles on two separate occasions. "He kept to his strategy, and, man, the guys put together a great car."

Reddick maintained the lead after a restart on Lap 79, after the Chevrolet of Stage 1 winner Ross Chastain jettisoned a wheel to cause the third caution of the afternoon and the only one for an on-track incident.

Restarting third, Van Gisbergen charged past Ryan Blaney and secured the second position downhill through the esses. For the first eight laps of the final 18-lap green-flag run, SVG harried the race winner, but Reddick gradually pulled away, using his Camry's horsepower and forward drive to gap Van Gisbergen's No. 97 Chevrolet up the hill toward Turn 1.

Reddick's winning margin over the Trackhouse Racing driver was a deceptively large 3.944 seconds.

Defending race winner Christopher Bell finished third, followed by Stage 2 winner Ty Gibbs and Michael McDowell. Hendrick Motorsports teammates Kyle Larson and Elliott ran sixth and seventh, respectively.

Next up is Phoenix, March 8 and the Straight Talk Wireless 500.
